

TEACHING HISTORY THROUGH A
~ GLOBAL LENS ~
BOOKS FOR BLACK HISTORY
MONTH AND BEYOND

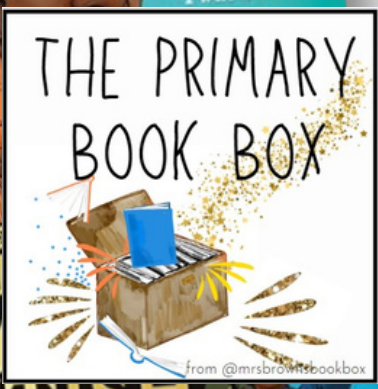

These lists are designed to help you to teach and learn about Black, Asian and indigenous histories in classrooms all year round.

These histories are all of our history.

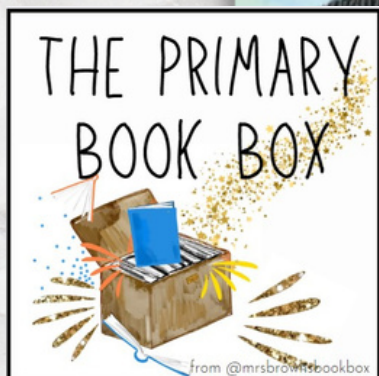

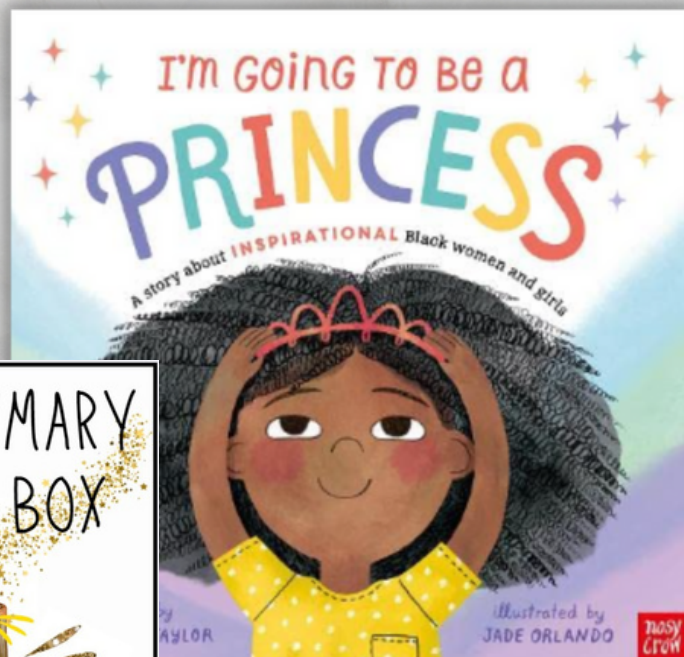

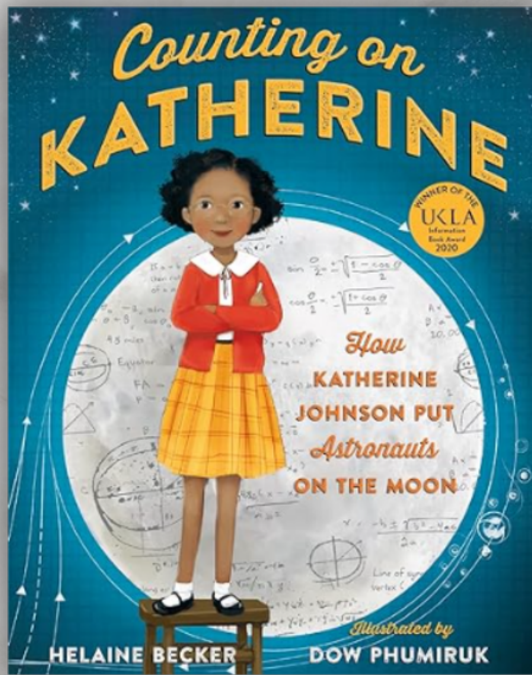

For a white British citizen, much of that history is uncomfortable, but that makes it even more important that we accurately represent the past so that we, along with our children, can learn and then do better.

These types of books should be available all year round on our shelves and not delivered as something 'additional,' 'special' or 'different!'

CELEBRATING OUR SISTERS ~ THEME FOR BLACK HISTORY MONTH 2023

RETEACHING HISTORY THROUGH A GLOBAL LENS

MY MOST
RECOMMENDED
SERIES FOR TEACHERS AND STUDENTS

This series has both a picture book and short chapter book version.

David Olusoga has also written a book for adults with the same title so you can all read and learn together!

These are two of my most recommended books for schools and families.

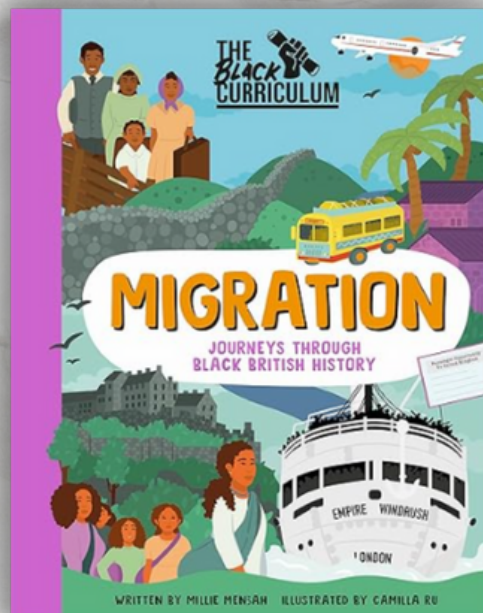

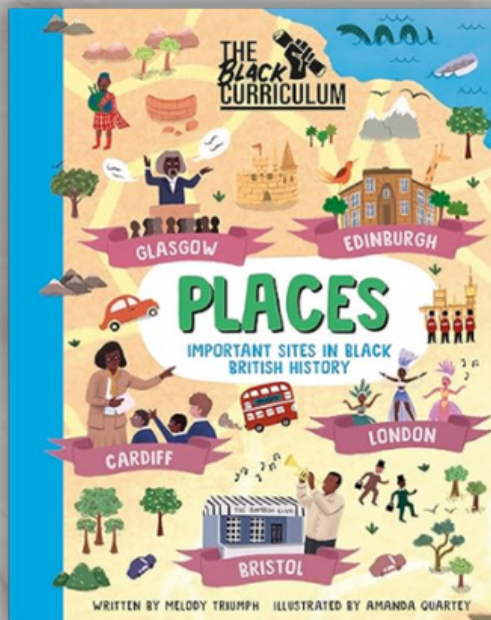

THE PRIMARY
BOOK BOX

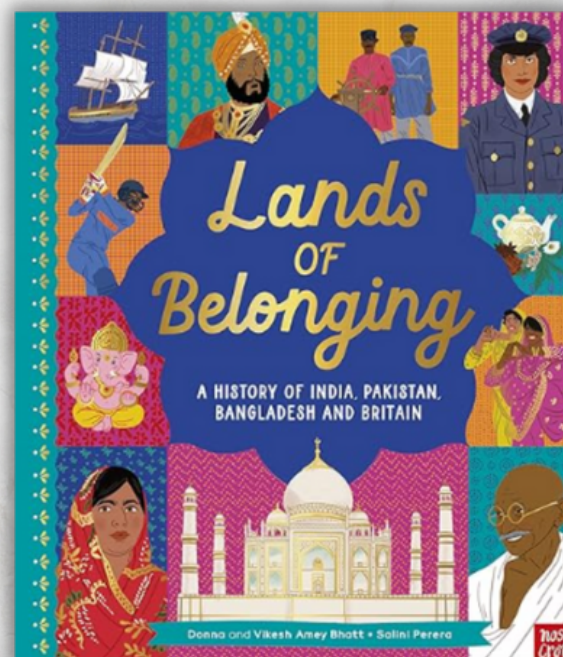

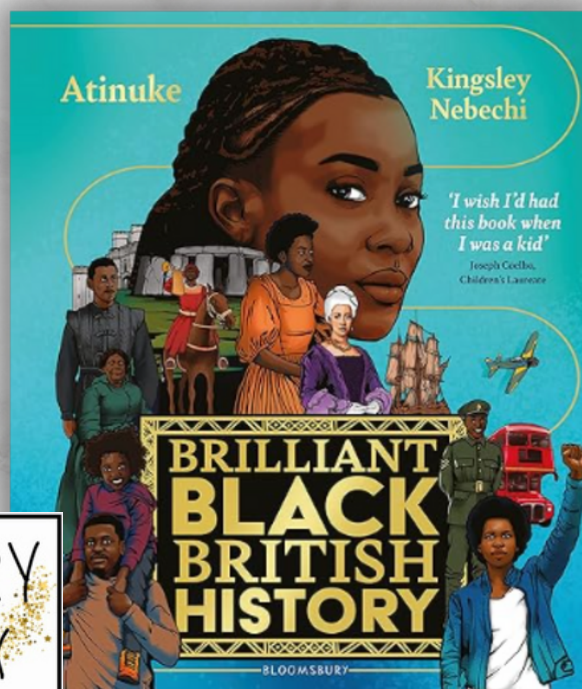

◀ SWIPE ▶

RETEACHING HISTORY THROUGH A GLOBAL LENS

The Black Curriculum resources are superb.

A discussion of Empire

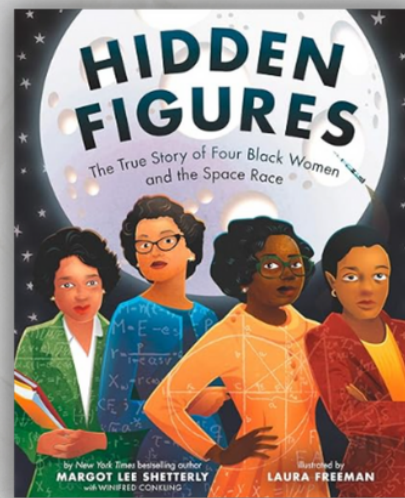

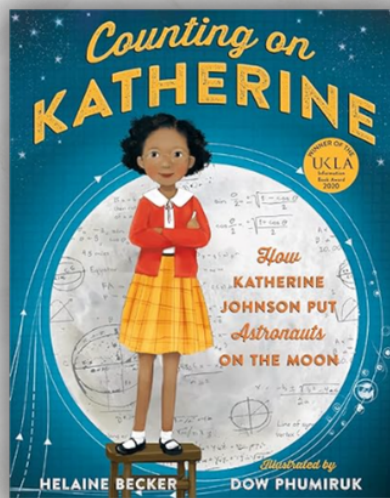

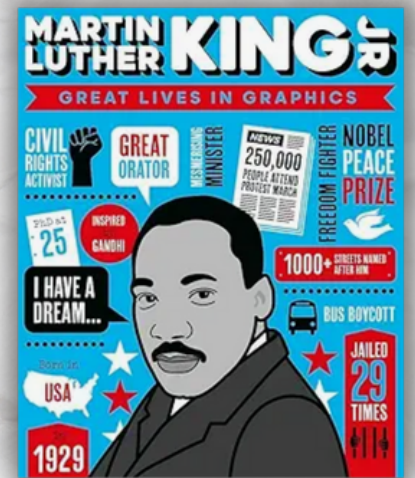

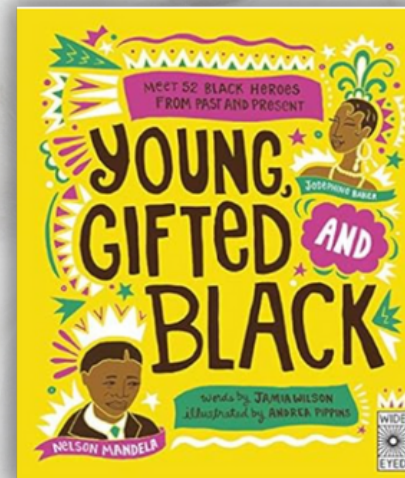

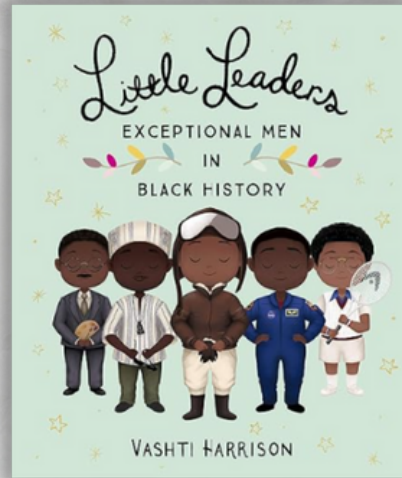

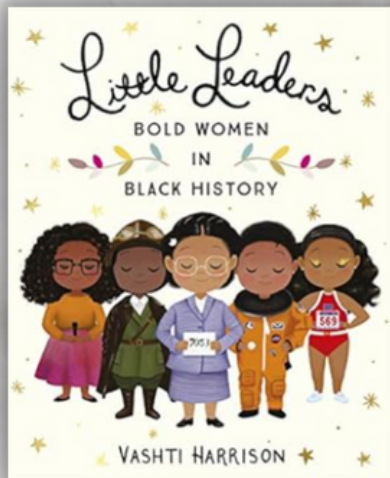

Newly published

BRILLIANT BIOGRAPHIES

THE PRIMARY
BOOK BOX

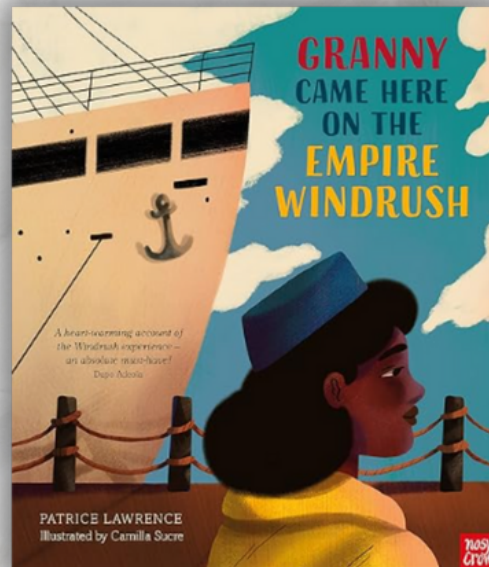

from @mrsbrownstbookbox

The Little People Big Dreams series has over 100 titles and explores the lives and contributions of many figures from the past and making history today.

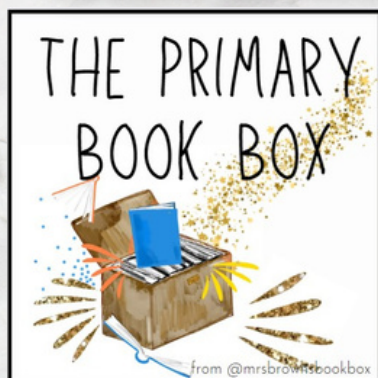

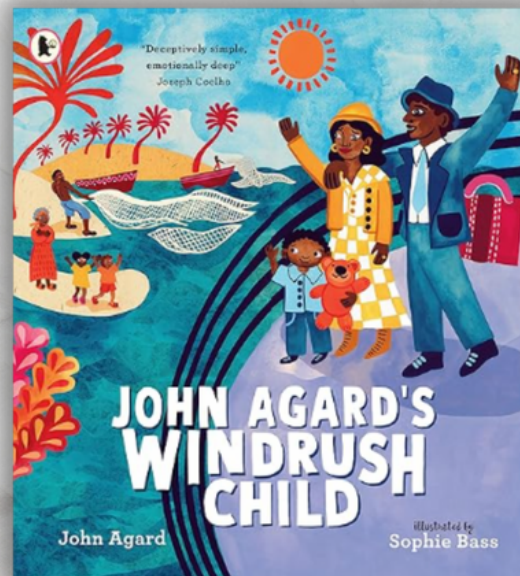

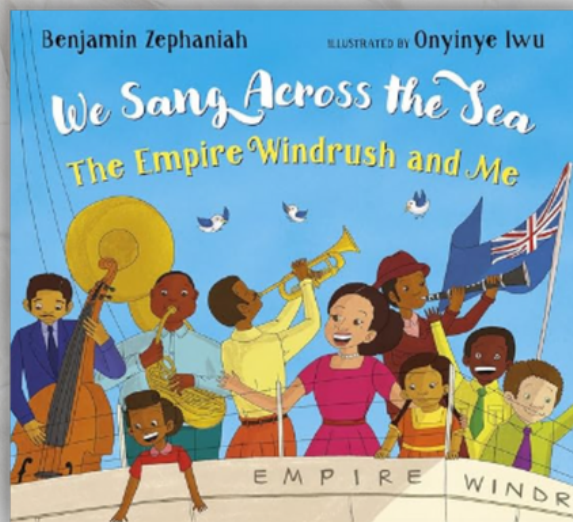

SWIPE

STORIES GIVING A VOICE TO UNDERREPRESENTED HISTORIES.

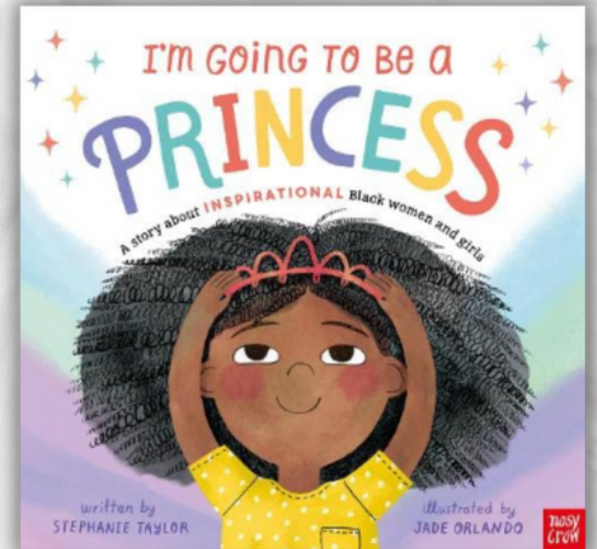

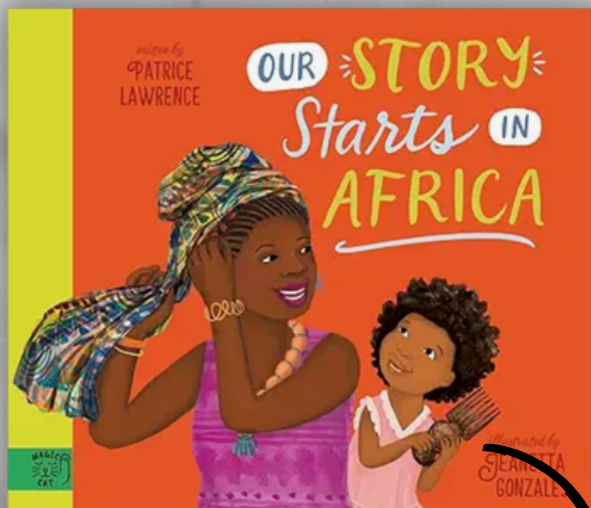

← There are many recently published books that focus on the Windrush generation, all written by authors with lived experience of this period of history and its legacy.

STORIES GIVING A VOICE TO UNDERREPRESENTED HISTORIES

This is a beautifully told, child friendly picture book that tells the story of Black history. It shares both the achievements, such as peaceful trading and writing, as well as more uncomfortable elements, such as war and slavery.

The 'Voices' series are fantastic for giving wider representation in many KS2 topics such as Tudors, Romans, Victorians and WW2.

BOOKS FOR OUR YOUNGEST LEARNERS

